Quietly And Effectively Her Service Was Well Done

Sometimes an individual can go on year after year serving her community so quietly and effectively that the service is scarcely realized by the general public.

Yet those closest to the scene, know and appreciate all that was being done.

Thus it was with Theresa J. Marston. As a girl of 12 she moved to Marin with her family. She graduated from San Rafael High School and became one of those rare novelties of the time, a woman at Stanford University.

In 1919 she won her degree, specialiizing in bacteriology. Then commenced the rounding out process, years of experience and service in hospitals in San Jose and Palo Alto under noted doctors.

Finally in 1936 she returned to Marin to set up the first private clinical laboratory in the county. Only other such lab was in Ross General Hospital. She became, in essence, the general practitioner of the laboratory.

"She was ready and available any time you needed her, 48 hours a day," one long-time nurse told us. "She'd come any time she was called."

Many nurses, doctors and patients sing her praises. She had friends galore, both in the medical profession

"I remember one case," another nurse told us, "when a boy had seriously injured his leg. The doctor was afraid he would have to amputate it. It was 4 a.m., but we called Miss Marston. She came to her laboratory and did required tests. They proved that the boy's leg could be saved. Today, he's a healthy man and, more important, whole."

All of the county's hospitals, however, installed their own laboratories. Doctors, who had been clustered in the Albert Building where Miss Marston's . laboratory was located, began to move to smaller medical units-and many of them had their own laboratories. So her business fell off, yet still she had plenty

But in September 1957, she decided to close the laboratory after 21 years, and retire.

She died last week with her job well

YMCA Goes On Growing

One hundred and fourteen years ago the YMCA movement began in England and in just seven years moved to this county.

It wasn't until 1947 that it reached Marin County with organized groups, but today 42 Y clubs provide recreation and training for more than 500 Marin boys and girls.

They have camping activities and dances. They have discussions and service projects. They have ski trips and a model government program, a basketball league and beach parties, to name

In short, they have such a varied program that most any boy or girl can find the kind of activity he or she likes.

Tomorrow is the start of National YMCA Week. During it, the Marin Y will launch a membership drive which they hope will lead to 65 clubs, or perhaps more.

We wish them luck.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

THEY WORK FOR YOU

Three painters in Milwaukee parked their cars in a two-hour zone and attached the following note to their windshields: "Painters working inside."

Upon returning each worker found a parking ticket on his car, together with this response: "Policemen working outside."

Many motorists wish that traffic police would be a little less vigilant. This in itself is at least an unwitting tribute to the fact that these public servants are doing their jobs efficiently.

One hears much these days about the few in government-local, state or national-who are lax, corrupt or subversive. But too little is said about the far greater number who devotedly and conscientiously serve God and David Madsen, San Rafael; country year in and year out.

You can contribute to better government by giving your moral support to worthy rank and file government workers. They do not seek special notice or privilege. But they do need and deserve your confidence and by Christmas?

Looks as if the city fathers are hoping to add some 250 more offstreet parking spaces this year to double the present number. They're talking of new lots at Third and Cijos and near San Rafael General Hospital - for purchase or lease.

If purchased, price negotiations shouldn't be as difficult as for the first three lots because the recent reappraisal has brought values in line on all property.

STATE CONTROLLER Alan Cranston may take his time about picking the state inheritance tax appraisers for Marin. But more names are being mentioned as possible choices under the Democratic controller.

They include Milton Crabtree, who's in the appraisal business in Mill Valley; and Lee Holman, Mill Valley attorney. Then there's Ray Bacon, a personal acquaintance of the controller. Stephen Gilardi may have an outside chance.

On the other hand, Cranston could retain the two holdovers from Robert Kirkwood's days - Walter Freitas and William Nock.

ARMY ENGINEERS are pretty good at engineering. They held a boats and harbors meeting in the city hall where the big wheels in attendance were assured they wouldn't have to worry about overtime parking because "it's all been fixed up."

They must have pulled rank on some poor corporal down in the police department.

But don't tell the jurors, who are duty-bound to sit on trials in the courthouse for days at a time. They've got to find their own parking spaces - at their own risk.

Well, I suppose you can say that statewide meetings of citywide import are held only once in a blue moon. But the little man jurors, dozens of them, serve almost daily do-

THERE'S RUMOR afloat that promotions might be under consideration for subordinates of Police Chief Frank Kelly, who comes up for reelection in April. Maybe a captaincy, and some lieutenants' posts.

Sentimental Senators Vote $40,000 Extra Benefits For Dislodged Martin WASHINGTON (P) -- The ate Democratic Leader Lyn-

sentimental gesture of the don Johnson, Republican Sen-House toward Rep. Joseph ate Leader Everett Dirksen, Martin of Massachusetts after he was booted out of Carl Hayden, Senate secretary his job as Republican leader Felton Johnston, and Senate - may cost the taxpayers up to $40,000 a year.

Leaders in Congress cost money.

The salary of the 74-yearold Martin, like that of any other senator or representative, is $22,500 a year. Congress voted itself that pay in 1955. It has also voted itself various kinds of expense money.

But as leader of the House Republicans, which he had been for 20 years, Martin got some extras: A Cadillac, a chauffeur, and about $26,000 more for office help than is allowed the ordinary congressman.

HE LOST THOSE extras last week when his fellow Republicans - apparently because they thought he was slowing up — bounced him as their leader and replaced him with Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana. Halleck is 58.

The thought of Martin, with a reduced office staff and having to journey to work like an ordinary member of Congress appeared too much for both Democrats and Republicans in the House. They voted Monday to give him back his ex-

Halleck, as the new Republican House leader, will, of course, also have a limousine, a chauffeur, and approximately $26,000 extra for additional office help.

BUT MARTIN and Halleck aren't the only Capitol leaders who get a car and chauffeur for themselves. Others who do are:

Vice President Nixon, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack, House Clerk Ralph R. Roberts, Sen-

Senate Speaker Pro Tempore Sergeant-at-arms Joseph C. Duke.

Vice President Nixon and Speaker Rayburn get a salary of $35,000 each, plus $10,000 for expenses. While Nixon, as vice president, gets $101,000 a year for office expenses, Rayburn gets $53,000.

An ordinary House member gets $35,000 for office help, if there are fewer than 500,-000 people in his district, and $40,000 if there are more than 500,000 in his district.

A HOUSE MEMBER also gets this extra expense money: $2,500 for office machinery like adding machines; free mailing privileges for ordinary letters; $400 for air mail and special delivery stamps: up to 3,000 minutes of long distance telephoning; 20,000 telegraph words free; $1,200 for stationery; plus $150 a month for the expense of having an office back in his home district.

This writer could not obtain a corresponding breakdown for members of the Senate on office expenses. A request for the information was turned down flatly at the Senate Appropriations Committee, at the Senate Disbursing Office, and by Senate Secretary Johnston. I was told this was pretty much of a secret.

A protest that taxpayers' money was involved and they were entitled to the information got nowhere. Johnston is not a senator but a Senate era-

"You have to be prepared for this sort of thing," said Dr. Robert T. Taylor, general secretary of the society, "if you are going to distribute Bibles on a global basis."

The American Bible Society was founded in 1816 to supply Bibles to families who were moving westward with America's frontier. The thoroughness with which it performed this mission was at least partly responsible for the fact that 19th Century America became a "Bible-reading nation."

Americans today are abundantly supplied with Bibles, whether they read them or not. So the society concentrates its efforts primarily on making the Scriptures available in other lands.

"It is easy to talk glibly about the Bible being a 'universal book," Taylor said. "But after a lifetime in this business I am still awed by the way it seems to transcend all barriers of race, nationality and culture.

It can be translated into any language, and the people who read it will find a message they can understand — a message that speaks to their deepest needs."

Through the efforts of the American Bible Society and companion groups in 22 other countries, the entire Bible has now been translated into 215 languages. The New Testament is available in an additional day School, 9:30 and 11 a. m.; Sunday School, 9:30 and 11 a. m. 270 languages, and individual SAUSALITO Gospels in 642 others, a grand total of 1,127 languages.

"This sounds like an impressive a c c o m plishment," said Taylor, "until you remember that there are still more than 1,500 languages and dialects, spoken by more than 100 million people, without any Bible at all."

The auction, with about 15 lunch boxes bid for by representatives of the four classes, netted $557. The freshmen bought the most, putting out more than $200. "I love my daily I-J ... especially the ads!"

MARIN WOMEN depend on the I-J . . . not only for daily information about what's happening locally, nationally, and world-wide, but for news about what markets, department stores, shops and other Marin business people are featuring. The ads are a family guide to everyday living, and the daily hometown newspaper is the easy and natural place to look for the latest and best offerings.

A survey of young housewives by Northwestern Univ. showed that 92 per cent wanted ads in their newspapers. On the other hand, 61 per cent said they would prefer television without commercials. There is a lesson here for business: advertising is looked for and welcomed in the newspaper. In some other media it is resented, or is tolerated only for the sake of entertainment.

In Marin, of course, the I-J is THE advertising medium, delivered daily to 5 out of 7 homes.*

Three Top Styles Of Storing Tools

Home tool storage is almost as important as the workshop in the modern home. Tools just piled up in a box or-on a table are anything but handy when wanted. To aid home craftsmen in putting their tools where they can be found when wanted, Masonite Corporation has devised a plan which tells how to build three different types of tool cabinets and holders.

For the craftsman with frequent fixup and repair work, there's a roll-around unit with divided drawers, shelves and Peg-Board sides. There's a wall-type cabinet to go over a workbench, and for the man with limited tools there's a carry-all with ample storage space for his assortment.

Information for building each types come in a free plan. No. AE-339, which will be sent on receipt of a postal card or letter request by the Home Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 W. Washington St., Chicago 2, III.

Patrolling Fairfax For 34 Years

Andy Peri Was Youngest Police Chief In California

By DIANA BRUCE

Andy Peri has been the Fairfax chief of police for so long that few people can remember when he wasn't.

The 54-year-old police chief began his duties as a deputy sheriff and nightwatchman on a stormy, rainy November evening in 1924. His most persuasive qualification was as a winning middleweight boxer for the Olympic Club in San Francisco. He was not quite 20 years old.

Andy patroled from 5 p.m. until daybreak seven days a week. About 11 months after he began, the California Legislature passed a law allowing a county board of supervisors to create police patrol districts for unincorporated towns.

The Marin supervisors duly appointed three Fairfax police commissioners: Bob W. Mullins, Harry Hansell and Jack Merton: They in turn selected Andy Peri as chief of police. For seven years, however, he served as chief of no one but himself.

CHIEF PERI was 21 years and 3 days old when he was appointed - the youngest police chief in California.

Fairfax was a resort town. The present Marin Town and County Club was known as Pastori's. Besides it and Buon Gusto and Deer Park Villa, there were a number of other resort spots which have since disappeared. The town was dotted with about 30 "little speakeasies" and "a lot of home bootlegging," Andy recalls.

He considered his main duty was to keep the peace. Until the word was passed around, he was making half a dozen trips to the county jail each night with "young punks" whom he had arrested for disturbing the peace.

The young punks had a habit of spilling moonshine on a dance floor and setting fire to it with a match.

ANOTHER PASTIME of theirs was to sit on the wooden steps at the train station and as an unsuspecting woman would alight from a train they would embarrass her by shouting "Say" as they looked p at her legs and then further disconcert her by singing "Sailing, sailing, over the ocean blue . . ." as though it were a continuation of their original remark.

"They were just cocky," said Andy.

Fairfax was surprisingly free of murders and other events connected with the prohibition era and the gangsters it spawned. Chief Peri said there was a house of prostitution in Fairfax only once. some 15 years ago, after prohibition was repealed.

"I had it cleaned up in 24 hours," he declared, with the aid of a woman detective he hired from Pinkerton's detective agency.

Andrew Joseph Peri was born Nov. 18, 1904, in the North Beach section of San Francisco. His parents, Antone and Linda Peri, both were natives of Genoa, Italy, but had met and married in San Francisco.

ANDY WAS the fourth of their five children. When he was five years old the family moved to 101 Willow avenue in Fairfax, into a house built by his father. Mrs. Peri, now 82, lives there today with her oldest son, Frank. She was widowed in 1949.

Andy's other brother, Charles, is the owner of Peri's Tavern on Broadway in Fairfax. His younger sister, Mrs. Dorothy Maggio, lives across the street from the Willow avenue house, and another sister, Mrs. Anita DeMartini, lives in San Francisco.

Andy received his education at Fairfax Grammar School and Ethan Allen School in San Francisco. He was 14 when he finished the eighth grade.

During World War I he enlisted in the Navy. He was a civilian again in two months, when it was discovered that he was only 16.

Andy got a job heating rivets at the Hunter's Point shipyard in San Francisco. For a time he was employed by a San Rafael bakery and then got into the "plumbing game," working for Al Capelli of San Anselmo, before his start as Fairfax night watchman.

As a youth he also embarked on an amateur boxing career at the Olympic Club in San Francisco. His manager was Ben Hartwell, a former California Highway Patrol captain who is now a sergeant of the Mill Valley Police Department.

His last bout was described in the June 10, 1926, San Francisco Bulletin:

"The Peri-Giacomini battle was over in 30 seconds; it was too full of action to last long. The boys rushed from their corners to the center of the ring where they met and started a toe-to-toe slugging bee, in which each lad gave and took plenty. Peri uncorked a right cross to the point during the slugfest that dropped his man like a log. It was necessary to apply restoratives to bring the vanquished battler around.'

Later in 1926 Andy was hurt in a motorcycle accident and was hospitalized for six months with two double bone fractures, a collar bone broken in two places, six broken ribs. He lost part of a finger, three teeth, and hearing in his right ear as a result of the accident.

In 1931 Fairfax was incorporated and Andy got a police department in the form of Sam N. Serio, now assistant chief of the San Anselmo Police Department. Counting the chief, the Fairfax Police Department now numbers six men. Since 1924 the Fairfax population has increased from 700 to more than 5,000.

THE YEAR before Fairfax incorporated, Chief Peri had married Frances Fairbank. Their home is at 1607 Sir Francis Drake boulevard, a white wood-frame house partially hidden by a small real estate office, barber shop and beauty salon.

The Fairfax police chief still has the pistol that Jack (Scarface) Chambers used to hold up the Bank of Italy in Fairfax. Peri and two fellows from the county sheriff's of-

Peri got his first police assignment in Fairfax in 1924 as a night watchman. The picture he is holding was taken the following year as he posed on his motorcycle with three other deputy sheriffs and a constable assigned to patrol the Fairfax Park. In 1925 he was made Fairfax police chief at the age of 21, the youngest chief in California. (Independent-Journal photo) fice arrested Chambers after six days and five nights of tramping around Lucas Valley in an effort to flush him out. The 1932 robbery was the first of two Fairfax bank robberies. The second was last Aug. 6 at the same bank, now the Bank of America.

Chief Peri was the subject of a political upheaval which succeeded in arousing the entire populace of Fairfax in 1949.

On Jan. 27, 1949, at a Fairfax City Council meeting not attended by the police chief, Councilman and Police Commissioner Charles O'Malley charged that Peri was inefficient, did not keep good records, had no training program, and made no effort to collect delinquent taxes. Councilman O'Malley also charged that Chief Peri's duties as constable (a job to which he was elected for 16 years) interfered with his duties as police

THE FAIRFAX council demoted Chief Peri to patrol-

Two weeks later he was reinstated as chief by the council after the city's civil service board of review found Peri not guilty of O'Malley's

"We are of the opinion," the five-member board reported, "that Chief Andrew J. Peri acted to the best of his ability and conducted his department to the best of his knowledge and experience.

"Due to the lack of prescribed standards of conduct his actions may not have always carried out the specific wishes of the council."

As a direct result of Peri's demotion, two Fairfax councilmen were voted out of office in May.

Something of a home-grown philosopher, Andy says: "Everybody's nice to me that doesn't bother me."

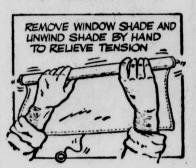

For years he has been a devoted sportsman. Besides the thrill of hunting deer or fowl, he adds: "You talk to yourself out there and nobody answers you back."

All kinds of woodworking tools, hand or powered, may be used in processing Masonite Presdwood. These durable, grainless, splinter-free panels, available at lumber yards, may be sawed, planed, routed, aniled, riveted or fastened to wood with screws driven through pre-drilled holes. Many come with a factory paint primer for easier finishing on the job.

Hollies and other berried shrubs can add much to the decor of your home for next holiday season. You'll find several in full berry at your nursery now. # Art Gallery Opens At El Paseo

Spot Like Carmel Envisioned

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN Mill Valley - an art center like Carmel.

This is the dream of artists who recently formed Artist Associates and established a gallery in El Paseo.

The name, particularly the word "Associates," was chosen to suggest a combination of professional painters and sculptors and lay art lovers, associated to offer the public the opportunity to see works of the highest quality and to participate in other art appreciation activities.

Shortly after Artist Associates was organized, its complementary group - Patron Associates - was formed in response to requests from people, not necessarily artists themselves, who wished to support the aims of the new group.

ARTISTS PARTICIPANTS are not all local, since excellence of work has been adopted as the criterion for acceptance. Objects created in other media and crafts, such as ceramics, will be exhibited.

Members believe that -the range on the various schools of painting is not as important as maturity, good taste and knowledgable or meaningful expression of the creative impulse.

"We believe that Mill Valley has the natural beauty of Continued on next page

setting to become an art center," said Helen Gapen Oehler chairman of Artists Associates "and we have found that many artists and the public are enthusiastic over the idea."

Especially appropriate as the birthplace for such an undertaking is El Paseo, where through the generosity of its owner, Mrs. Henry Foster, a charming room with fireplace was made available as a Gallery and headquarters.

eL PASEO was the result of Mrs. Foster's admiration for a similar structure in Palo Alto, built by Pedro Lemos of the Stanford University Art Department to prove that commercial property can be both beautiful and profitable.

Designed in old mission style in keeping with early California history by Mrs. Foster and the well known Marin designer-contractor, A. G. (Gus) Costigan, El Paseo consists of a picturesque private winding street, or paseo, connecting shops, studios, apartments and a restaurant, and several delightfully land-scaped patios.

Since 1941, when it was completed, it has been the setting for several art exhibits including art in action, and at one time there were 2,000 canvases on display which 5,000 people saw during one weekend.

According to Mrs. Foster, the success of this venture helped to inspire Mrs. Norman Livermore to start the Marin Art and Garden Center.

Thus Artist Associates was very fortunate when Mrs. Foster made a place for the gallery in this spot.

AT PRESENT 13 professional painters and sculptors are members, and, according to Mrs. Oehler, the membership quota is almost filled. Six of the 13 have also had much experience as teachers of art.

The roster includes Arthur Palmer of Woodacre; Carlo Talliabue, Thomas Leighton and Marjory Lester, all of San Francisco; Anton Dahl of Corte Madera; and in addition to Mrs. Oehler, from Mill Valley, Nevin Kempthorne, Ted Christensen, Hubert Buel, Barbara Carpenter, Viking Leon and John Moran.

Paintings and sculpture by all of these artists, as well pieces done by several people who work in ceramics, are now on display at the gallery every day except Sunday from noon to 4:30 p.m. Others may be seen in the restaurant and Charles Durrie's interior decorator studio in El Paseo, and invitations have been received to exhibit elsewhere.

Elected to serve as first officers with Mrs. Oehler were Arthur Palmer, vice chairman Nevin Kempthorne, secretary; and Viking Leon, treasurer.

THE GROUP meets once a month at the gallery to change shows and plan programs that will include classes, lectures, demonstrations and art in action.

In gallery files are brochures with photos of each artist's works and information regarding awards, public background and current exhibits and activities.

Visitors are welcomed at the gallery, where a cheery fire on the hearth and everready coffee pot add to the homelike atmosphere.

Especially urged to come in are those, not necessarily artists themselves, who enjoy works of art and who may be interested in Patron Associates.

The value of contact with works of high quality was well expressed by the secretary of Artist Associates — "Sometimes we forget the harmony of chords we once heard and loved, and need the help of practiced hands to know and play the tune again. So it is with all the arts."

Give Fences Nautical Look

Everyone has heard of the unusual effects in home design achieved through the combination of west coast woods with brick, stone, and other natural building materials. But, have you heard of the combination of wood with rope?

Build the frame of Douglas fir or western red cedar, painted or stained to match the house siding, or left to weather to a natural gray if you prefer, and install giantsized screw eyes top and bottom, at about six-inch intervals. A good grade of heavy rope is then looped through the screw eyes to form a delightfully modern, rather nautical criss-cross pattern. The design is light and airy, doesn't obstruct the vision, yet keeps tiny toddlers from falling off porches and decks.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania Audio Engineer

First of a weekly series of articles which will cover all phases of STEREO-PHONIC SOUND for the home.

So many of my friends have asked me to explain the principles and merits of stereophonic sound, and so many people that I have talked with have such a misunderstanding of stereophonic sound that I have decided to write a series of articles in non-technical terms explaining this newest of entertainment fields for the home.

The series of articles will answer the following questions that may be in your mind: What is Hi-Fi? What is Stereo Sound? What is the difference between Monaural Sound (monophonic) and Stereophonic Sound? What will stereo add to our home listening pleasure? How does one go about choosing the correct Hi-Fi and Stereo System? Are there any significant differences between the commercial stereo package systems now flooding the market and the component type systems such as are purchased in the highly specialized CUSTOM HI-FI STORES? How much does one have to spend to get good stereo sound without going overboard? Can stereo be done in a progressive manner? That is, a little at a time such as starting with a monaural Hi-Fi system and gradually adding the appropriate units. These and many other questions will be answered so that you can choose wisely when you select the Stereo Hi-Fi system

Construction Boom At HAFB

Story and photos by ROBERT K. NEWCOMB

Hamilton Air Force Base is in the midst of a major construction program, providing nearly 10 million dollars worth of new facilities. Most of the work was begun less than four months ago. Most of it expected to be completed by next July.

When it's finished, Hamilton will have two new threestory barracks, a large airmen's dining hall capable of feeding 500 men in 90 minutes, a new chapel and educational classroom wing, a new jet engine test cell with a built-in muffling device, and several other tacilities, at least one of them classified secret, near the field's flight

And on the southernmost edge of the base, 200 rolling acres will be covered with 550 modern apartments and homes — the sixty-eight-million-dollar Capehart housing project. It will provide living space for base personnel and their families.

RECENT RAINS have washed away several leveled building sites there, but workmen are attempting to make up lost time.

CWO James M. Marsico Jr., deputy for management at Hamilton's installations engineering office, which was instrumental in outlining the current construction program, says the work is being carried out in accordance with a continuous and over-all construction policy. It is designed mainly to improve the installation by replacing old and temporary facilities with new permanent ones.

It is not being done, he said, because of any great increase forseen in the base's manpower. The more modern facilities will cut maintenance costs appreciably, and will permit better utilization of land in some cases and improved economy in others, he said.

In the case of the new dormitories (the term dormitory has replaced that of barracks in the new Air Force), the old World War II barracks which now serve as bachelor quarters for enlisted personnel near the flight line will be razed, allowing expansion of aircraft areas.

IN THE CASE of the new dining hall (the term mess hall is also obsolete), "obviously," Marsico says, "where there is one hall instead of several, duplication of both manpower and equipment is minimized."

The installations office has spent $528,000 for maintenance and repair contracts since July 1, 1958, Marsico said. "We are hopeful that the new construction will help cut those costs way down."

The two airmen's dormitories, costing a total of $666,000, are now well along in construction on the north side of the base. The modern steel and concrete edifices will each house 217 men when month.

They will be a far cry, too, from the drab and drafty barracks common to military bases in years past. "They will be comparable to good college dorms," Marsico claims.

Each of the two buildings will be equipped with a central lounge for the airmen, who will live three to a room. Central washrooms on each floor will feature private shower stall, finished in tile. Bedrooms will include builtin wardrobes.

ABOUT THREE city blocks from the dormitories, the new $413,000 dining hall is taking shape. Of reinforced steel and concrete, the facility will replace several temporary type mess halls.

The dining hall, expected to open in April, will contain "the most modern equipment completed, probably next available for mass cooking," Marsico said.

> A new domed chapel, with an adjoining wing of partitioned classrooms, is taking recognizable shape near the central part of the base. It is the first permanent chapel to be erected at Hamilton, which is now using a small and inadequate building for religious services.

About $265.000 is being spent on this facility.

Various activities, both religious and secular, will be conducted in the chapel's classroom wing, Marsico said. Partitions will allow the classrooms to be expanded or reduced in size. The classrooms will be used only by off-duty personnel.

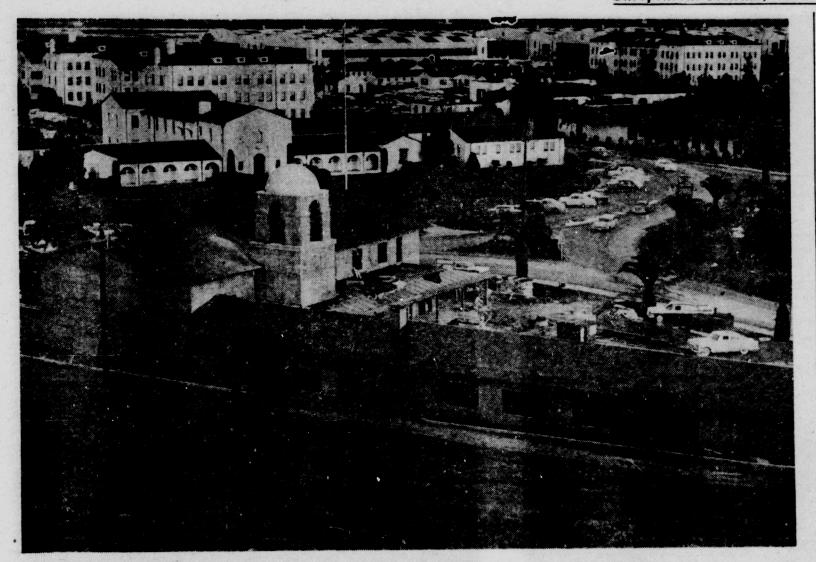

The chapel and classrooms are expected to be completed in April.

FUTURE DINING HALL - Hamilton Air Force Base airmen may look forward to eating in this partially completed hall which will be capable of feeding up to 500 men in a 90-minute period. The building is being constructed on a site on the north side of the base at a cost of $413,000. The facility is being equipped with the last word in cooking equipment and will replace several other smaller base mess halls.

CHAPEL TAKES FORM - The new Hamilton Air Force Base Chapel, to replace the present temporary building now providing religious services, is taking on a near-finished look, but completion of the $265,000 facility is not expected for about five months more. The structure includes a classroom wing which will be used for both religious and secular purposes by airmen during off-duty hours.

engines, the first permanent one on the base, is to be completed within two months. Costing $192,000, the unit will considerably reduce the noise of engines which are tested regularly. The new cell will not entirely eliminate the noise, but it is expected to provide an "adequate" muffling, Marsico said.

Another major cost item in the construction program is the $250,000 job of installing electrical outlets for aircraft use on the flight line.

Completed and in use since September is a new approach lighting system for Hamilton's aircraft, installed for $25,000 as a part of the present construction program.

STILL ANOTHER flight line project is under way, but in a "classified" zone and kept secret by the Air Force, reported Marsico. Even the installations office doesn't know what it is, he said. Neither are cost estimates known.

All of the construction is financed with federal appropriations. The actual design and construction inspection is handled by the Army Corps of Engineers. Once construction is complete, a joint inspection will be made by the corps and by the base installations engineer, Lt. Col. Walter H. Gerdau. Finally, Hamilton accepts the ownership and maintenance responsibility of the buildings.

WHAT FUTURE construction will follow the present program is still not known, Marsico said. "That will depend largely on what money is made available to us. The base will continue to follow its policy of replacement and improvement."

A private architectural firm from the Middle West has been retained to draw up a 25-year projected master plan for the base, Marsico said. Once that is finished, future steps can be taken.

HAVEN OR BOOBY TRAP?

Are You The Houseproof Type? Here's Checklist

By VIVIAN BROWN

Are you the house proof type? Or do you resent owning a house because it is one big colossal chore? Would you enjoy your house if there just weren't so many little problems to keep you from appreciating its virtues?

You can make your house a haven instead of a booby trap by making advance preparations, and using foresight instead of hindsight. Here are some questions to test your home preparedness:

1. Are you prepared to fight small fires with the proper equipment - fire extinguishers, a handy bucket? Do you know the telephone number of the fire depart-

2. Are tree limbs or trunks rotting, a threat to house and family when laden with ice or hit by high winus: them sawed off before they cause disaster.

3. Are you prepared to handle intrusion? Do you know the number of your police department? Are you armed with some protectiondog, gun, etc.?

4. Can you do minor repairs — fix a sink washer or small leaks? If not can you get someone to do it promptly before it becomes a real annoyance?

5. Is your house adequately wired so you do not blow a fuse box when the new portable oven or broiler is installed?

6. Are there indications that your water pressure is low? New pipes may clear up the problem, and prevent a bursting pipe from flooding the cellar.

7. Do all members of the family know the house in case of emergency — the location of the fuse box, pump lever, furnace switch, flashlights, candles?

8. Do you know who to call to remove excessive rubbish? Who would you call to pump out a flooded cellar or repair a broken furnace?

9. Do you understand home safety, such as the hazard of entering a flooded cellar and the danger of electrocution?

10. Do you know where you would move the contents of your freezer in the event of power failure? Many stores have food lockers, and some neighbors may have their own power generators. Locate a place now so you can move your frozen goods pronto.

11. Do you own a ladder tall enough to reach the roof or do you know where you could reach one quickly? Suppose Junior should climb out the window to a roof ledge. How would you get to him for

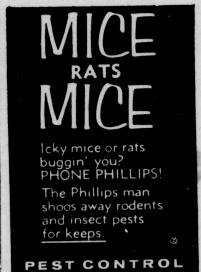

12. Are there keys to your doors in case you are called away from home suddenly? Do windows lock securely?

13.Are there small leaks in your roof? Get them repaired while the getting is good, before local workmen become tied up on big projects after heavy rainfall.

14. Are securities and insurance policies, bonds and other valuables in a safe or bank vault or stored in another fireproof area? Do you have serial numbers of items not insured?

15. Have you checked for termites recently? Remember that many termites enter homes in fire logs. Keep fire logs out of the house in a wood box if possible, until you are ready to burn them.

Not many men who have been on the job for 21 years can say that their vocation and avocation are the same.

But that's what Capt. Ralph Dale, skipper of the new state Department of Fish and Game patrol boat Albacore says of his job.

Last week, the 48-year-old veteran of the service steered his 137-ton craft out into the bay from its Sausalito berth to undergo its builder's trials. The purpose was to see if the spanking new vessel would perform as its designer and its builder intended it should.

AS WE STOOD on the flying bridge, Captain Dale pointed the 90-foot craft in the direction of Treasure Island. "We'll run the measured mile course there," he explained, "running our engines at a pre-determined number of revolutions per minute."

Builder trials are a serious business, whether for a fish and game patrol boat, an aircraft carrier or a freighter.

One of the most concerned on board was Loring C. Norgaard of 25 Tarry road, Sleepy Hollow, who designed the Albacore. He heads the firm of L. C. Norgaard and Associates of San Francisco, widely known naval architects and designers. Their standing was summarized by Captain Dale with this comment: "They are the most experienced and competent designers of vessels of this size of any architects on the coast."

Norgaard was completely preoccupied with notes, figures, a slide rule and other data with which he would check the vessel's perform-

EQUALLY concerned was Wilton Colberg, head of the TRIALS FOR NEW SHIP -Last week, the fish and game patrol vessel Albacore underwent builder's trials off Treasure Island. Operated by the state Fish and Game Department, it is believed the largest fish and game patrol craft in the United States. Today's cover photo shows the Albacore, a bone in its teeth, undergoing its speed trials. The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge looms in the distance. All photos are by Independent-Journal photographer Ken Molino.

Stockton firm which bears his name and which built the craft. The second generation at the yard to bear the Colberg name, he followed his father, who started the plant in 1896. The Colberg plant did an outstanding job during World War II, building various types of smaller craft up to 186-foot salvage vessels in both wood and steel.

Watching the performance of the power plant were two representatives of the Waukesha Motor Co. of Waukesha, Wis.-R. R. Heideman from the firm's branch in Los Angeles and Carroll F. Reeves, manager of the sales company in Emeryville which sold the two modern engines.

"THIS VESSEL is about twice the size of the earlier Albacore," the captain reported as we surged across the bay to Treasure Island. "The old one was a converted Coast Guard patrol boat which we got in 1947 and just plain wore itself out."

It has been sold to a Southern California firm.

Other specifications, for the statistically minded, show the Albacore to have a 22-foot beam and a six-foot, nine-inch draft. Her twin in-line sixcylinder turbo-charged diesel engines are rated at 1,000 horsepower each at 1,200 r.p.m. The ship is designed to cruise at 15 knots.

She consumes 60 gallons of diesel fuel per hour at cruising speed and drives her stainless steel propellers through 2.19 to 1 reduction gears.

The vessel, whose basic requirements were developed by Captain-Dale over a threeyear period, required eight months to build at a cost to the state of about $280,000.

"What's more," Dale smiled, "the Fish and Game Commission paid a sales tax of $12.-000 to the state's general fund."

The Albacore has a crew of six, including the skipper.

IN ADDITION to Captain Dale's extensive experience with the Department of Fish and Game, he is also an active naval reserve officer and is qualified to command destroyers, among other vessels. In 1954, for example, he was called to temporary active duty as executive officer on the Navy ice breaker Breton Island when it made what Dale believes is the first west to east voyage of the Northwest Passage.

"It was that long ago," he recounted, "that the Navy was checking the feasibility of the subsequent trips made by the nuclear-powered submarines Nautilus and Skate a few months ago."

Dale is also commanding officer of Military Sea Transport Service 12-1 which meets regularly at Kentfield. He is married, has a married daughter and a married son who is aboard the Coast Guard cutter Dexter stationed at Alameda.

CHIEF ENGINEER is James W. West, 50, who has been in the service for the past 11 years and served with Dale in the Navy as a chief machinist's mate. He is a resident of Tamalpais Valley, at 349 Jean street.

Other crew members include Matt Ramezane, 34, who is warden and boarding officer and mate. His permanent home is in Gilroy.

Deck hands and wardens also are William Waters, 37, of Sausalito and Leighton Mc-Laughlin, 35, of Mill Valley. Richard Van Velkinburgh, 36, of 86 Pico Vista, Novato, is cook.

"Everybody on board is deputized for control work," Captain Dale said.

As the Albacore made her runs over the measured mile course, we were aware of a change after each turn.

"We change engine speeds," Dale explained. "We are making runs at 600, 800, 1,000, 1,100 and 1,200 revolutions per minute."

WHAT WAS the purpose of the trials?

BRAIN TRUST—The brain trust studies the results of the trials. As the Albacore completes its builder's trials, the "brains" go into a huddle. Foreground, with his back to the camera, is Capt. Ralph Dale. On the opposite side, facing the camera, is Loring C. Norgaard, who designed the ship. At his right is Wilton Colberg, who built the craft. R. R. Heideman and Carroll F. Reeves of the Waukesha Engine Co. complete the group.

CHECKING PERFORMANCE — Loring C. Norgaard of Sleepy Hollow, naval architect who designed the new state fish and game patrol boat Albacore, appears a little concerned as he stands on the flying bridge, stop watch in hand, ready to check the ship's performance as she starts on her builder's trials. He found out later that she did all right.

TRIALS

Dale answered, "we will develop data which will make it possible for the designer to order spare propellers which we must have."

Norgaard chimed in to call attention to the fact that this ship is the first of its size on the West Coast using stainless steel in place of conventional bronze propellers. "These," he said, "will provide greater strength, but more important, will reduce electrolysis which is development.

oped between non-similar metals in salt water. Reduction in electrolysis will in turn reduce corrosion and metal failure."

The Albacore patrols a 700-mile stretch of California coast from Morro Bay on the south to the Oregon line, within waters under state jurisdiction. On the southern leg of the run, it occasionally has help from its sister ship Bonita, also based at Sausalito. But on the northern stretch it works alone.

"OUR PRINCIPAL job is to enforce the laws governing commercial fishing," Captain Dale said. He noted that only the "drag boats" (operating with a net on the bottom) operate the year round. Others, such as those fishing for salmon or crab, operate on a seasonal basis.

"For these, we must be on patrol to make sure that there is no fishing a minute prior to start of the season, among other things."

Some 75 per cent of the patrol work is done with the aid of the Albacore's radar, operating at night and in foul weather. Many a culprit has been nabbed in the fog.

"Actually," Captain Dale noted, "almost all of the commercial fishermen are small businessmen and operate accordingly. However, sometimes they chance going into forbidden territory hoping for a quick profit and get caught."

SPORT FISHING comes into the picture, too.

Part of the job for the wardens is to board party boats and check for proper licenses, boat registration, size and limits of catches. "We've found that most party boat skippers cooperate excellently," Captain Dale noted, "and they discipline their passengers accordingly."

We'd been running at the top 1,200 r.p.m. after we finished the speed run, had traveled all the way to the Richmond Bridge and back to the Sausalito berth while Captain Dale gave us this data in the spic and span wardroom.

And then the voyage was ended.

And by the way, "cookie" Van Velkinburgh sure knows how to put that chow together!

It's Easy To Be A Good Neighbor

Do you know how to get along with your neighbors? It's easy. Just listen to them expound on what they don't like about the other neighbors in your area. Ladders to leaves, it'll go like this:

1. If you borrow tools put them back in their home workshop by 6 o'clock. (But don't be gauche, and ask your neighbor to return your borrowed rake until he's through with it.)

2. Sweep your leaves up the moment they drop from the trees. (Be prepared to sweep his, too, when a wrongway breeze puts them on your property.)

3. If he doesn't have a dog, put a muzzle around yours to keep him from yapping (but buy ear plugs if your neighbor has a kennel of howling canines.)

4. Keep your place beautifully landscaped with flowers blooming in every season to complement the neighborhood (but overlook your neighbor's straggly weeds, for which he'll have a good excuse.)

5. Be sure to keep your garbage can out of sight. Ditto clothes line and trash. (If his show, pretend you haven't noticed.)

6. Close your garage door every time you put the car to bed. (If you don't it'll run down the hill, even though everyone else leaves his garage door open.)

7. Go into a tool pool with enthusiasm. Buy one-fifth of a power saw or a ladder. (But don't be surprised if all share holders blow up when you want to buy out.)

8. Be sure to keep enough seed in your bird feeder, so you won't be criticized.

9. Be considerate of your neighbor's color scheme, the environment and location when you paint your house.

(But if he hangs neon lights from the eaves be a good sport and smile gaily.)

10. Be sure you burn rubbish on the days the town elects for outdoor fires. (But when your neighbor starts a brush fire, give him a hand beating it out, at the risk of your life.)

Planning Can Increase Work Areas

Modern woman is probably the most efficient homemaker in history. Not only have various cleaning appliances and gadgets emancipated her, but contemporary house design, too, has had its effect.

Today's home is made up of well-defined work areas in which the little woman can complete her chores while hardly taking a step. The result—a tremendous saving in time and energy and a more relaxed homemaker.

Fifty per cent of any job lies in the planning, however, and again, the planning center included in many new homes has increased efficiency by an amazing amount. Smart women, with an eye for saving space, incorporate their planning center into a multi-purpose homemaker's corner for all of her hand chores: the sewing, the record keeping, and paper work for meals, parties, and the like.

ner should include a desk, a sewing counter, and storage cabinets, all of which are easily fashioned from a workable softwood like durable, goodlooking Douglas fir.

The handiwork corner is usually filched from the family room or utility-play area where she can work and keep an eye on the offspring at the same time, and it is adjacent to the kitchen so cooking operations can be carried on while she's doing the family mending.

Her desk must have adequate drawer space where records, lists, and accounting

LATEST BUILDING TREND calls for a floor plan including a homemaking area for the mistress of the house. This lovely homemaker's corner occupies a nook of the family room and features a built-in desk and sewing counter. figures may be kept. This is best located on the outside wall of the room and will economically put to use dead space under a window.

the sewing center can be most easily incorporated into a counter-like divider on the room side. One clever plan calls for the sewing machine to be mounted on a heavy, two-inch thick board which swings up into a wall cabinet and forms its door. The counter on which it rests has a corresponding, two-inch depressed portion into which the door fits when let down. Inside the cabinet are pegged shelves for thread. Mounting the sewing machine permanently in this manner eliminates the juggling act of setting it up, and it's quickly shut out of sight when the counter is needed for other work.

Plenty of cabinet space should be provided in the homemaker's center, for she'll want to store all sorts of bulky odds and ends, like boxes of greeting cards, and here she can keep unfinished items such as table decorations which are being made a little at a time.

Natural finish for the cabinets, sewing counter, and desk is by far and away the most popular because the tawny beige of Douglas fir is easy on the eyes, but a bright, cheerful shade of paint can be used on the wood if preferred.

Power Sanding Eases Work Of Refinishing

Underneath the chipped surface of dilapidated-looking old furniture frequently is expensive, solidly - assembled wood that makes unmatched antique pieces when given thorough refinishing.

Such furniture can be put into priceless condition at little cost with the aid of a portable electric sander, the sanding attachment of an electric drill or polisher, and the correct tone of lacquer or shellac.

Do-it-yourself experts point out that there's no muscle-work to the refinishing job using power equipment. After using paint or varnish remover to get rid of the old covering, fill any gashes or mars with plastic wood or shavings of the same type of wood as the furniture.

Then sand all surfaces with an electric sander or sander attachment. Between coats of lacquer or shellac, you may want to do more light sanding with the electric sander.

Redwood Rates High As Material For Siding

Families spending these winter months in planning new homes or remodeling projects for the spring and summer ahead will find the selection of an exterior siding material one of the biggest decisions they'll make.

That's because of the flood of new siding materials introduced in recent years, and because of the varied functions—each of them important—that an exterior siding must fulfill. In spite of these new materials, wood remains as the best over-all exterior siding, in terms of appearance, insulation, initial cost, simplicity, cost of maintenance, and durability. California redwood rates high as a siding material.

Versatile and durable California redwood siding does more than just enclose a home. Architects, home builders, and home owners alike are finding they can put redwood siding to additional use—to augment the architectural design of the structure.

This is as true for the onestory and split-level ranch and contemporary homes, popular today, as it is for the more traditionally designed homes.

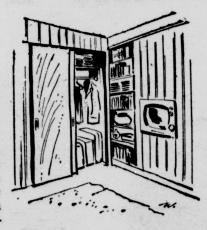

There are several ways redwood siding can help to make a house exterior more attractive.

First of all, redwood siding, whether laid in horizontal or vertical courses — or even diagonally — forms an eyecatching pattern that breaks up the monotony of flat wall surfaces. This pattern may be emphasized by using a thick butt edge redwood bevel siding, for example, or a V-joint tongue-and-groove variation to achieve a strong shadow line. Or the siding pattern may be subdued by the use of variations such as flush tongue-and-groove and shiplap joints, which produce no shadow line.

Some special architectural effects may be obtained through the use of redwood siding. A long, low house can be made to look taller by utilizing a narrow siding pattern applied in vertical courses. Wide horizontal courses tend to make a building appear to be lower than it is. Similarly, horizontal siding can stretch out the horizontal lines of a structure, and vertical courses can be used for the opposite effect.

Redwood's functions as a siding material do not end here. The color and texture of natural redwood lend beauty and warmth to the exterior of house, make the interior seem more inviting. Redwood lends aesthetic interest to a home by its ability to mix with other materials, and can be used in combination with brick, natural stone, stucco, and other products to achieve special architectural effects. And it is easy to maintain. Paint it, stain it, treat it with a water repellent — or leave it to weather naturally.

BUSY CORNER—Here's a man's corner in the bedroom, out of the way of the missus. Just the corner has been paneled in lovely, natural toned Douglas fir from ceiling to floor. The paneled section includes compact bookcase in deep corner, flush fitted television set, and walkin wardrobe. This section is distinctive and stands out like a choice piece of furniture.

Cut Plastic FoamWith Electric Saw

One of the easiest ways to cut plastic foam to the exact size and shape desired is with a portable electric jig saw.

Plastic foam does many of the jobs of foam rubber—for upholstering unpadded chairs, insulating, even for beach mattresses—and it can be cut to definite patterns quickly and easily with the portable jig saw. Thor power tool engineers suggest using a fine blade on a thin sheet of hardboard or plywood to avoid damaging the plastic foam in cutting.

'WAVES OF MUSIC'-That's the title of this abstraction by Virginia Ann Hensley. The opaque watercolor is done in clear blues and yellows, with black and white accents.

OTHER CRAFTS—Painting and sculpture are not the only media represented at the Marin Society of Artists' show. Here's a leatherwork bag by Mabel Moxon resting on a weaving design by Paul H. Anderson.

STRONG DESIGN—Edward F. Ghiorzoe's strongly designed oil abstraction in soft blues and greens is titled "Bait Shop."

Linoleum, Tile Last Longer Over Masonite

A smooth, solid base will give longer life to linoleum, rubber tile, asphalt tile and similar floor coverings. Widely used for such a base is Masonite Underlayment. Its uniform thickness and low cost have made its use a "must" in numerous installations.

Advantages gained by using the underlayment are:

Greater life expectancy for the finish flooring material which is less subject to cracking or breaking when placed on a smooth, solid base.

Additional insulation that reduces heat losses.

Less noise transmission to areas below the floor.

Warmer, tighter floor, particularly over crawl spaces in houses without basements.

Greater strength and stiffness in floor construction.

Directions for installing the underlayment, available at lumber yards, may be obtained free by writing the Home Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 W. Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill., and requesting Technical Bulletin A-210-4.

GARDEN IN CONTAINERS—These three planter boxes fit the modern trend toward gardening in containers. Graceful and lightweight, they will last for many years, and are not difficult to build.

Choose The Right Fruit For The Right Climate

Ask a nurseryman what single step best insures success with growing fruit trees at home. He'll probably tell you it's choosing the right fruit for the right climate and not letting personal taste be your guide.

Not to suggest that you plant something you don't like just to watch it thrive. But if your climate won't handle a peach and nothing else satisfies your taste, then grow petunias instead. The California Assn. of Nurserymen claims you'll be just as happy.

Actually, the five deciduous fruits we're concerned with here can be found in widely scattered parts of the state. But each has its favored areas.

Take the apple. It is probably the most widely adapted fruit in California. Yet, in the Central Valley apples are less successful than in cooler locations. And in Southern California areas—except higher up—winters are too mild to satisfy chilling requirements. In such areas, nurserymen offer special varieties that have shown better-than-average adaptation.

Peaches, on the other hand, are heat lovers and most varieties reach their peak in the Central Valley or its surrounding foothills. In coastal valleys you can grow fair-to-good peaches, but in the fog belt gardeners seldom know much success.

Pears are not at their best in hot interior valleys, though one or two varieties do very well. Nor do they like the fogbound coast. Pears are at their best in coastal valleys and in the foothills.

Cherries do best in coastal valleys around San Francisco Bay but are adapted to foothills of the Central Valley and to mountain areas in Southern California. Apricots have wide adaptation, thriving in the coastal valleys again, but also knowing success in the Central Valley and Southern California.

The problem is best solved by asking your nurseryman. He can name varieties which stand cooler conditions or have low winter-chilling requirements or what have you.

Soil Too Soggy?

Often during winter, we buy plants, get them home and find that the soil is too wet to be workable. The California Association of Nurserymen advises that bareroot plants should be "heeled in" if they are to remain out of their planting site after you bring them home if it is too wet to plant. To heel a plant in, merely bury the roots in moist soil and keep them there until you're ready to plant.

Ranunculus Parade

To give yourself a succession of bloom with ranunculus, keep planting them right through winter, even into March. Since ranunculas suffer from heat, late planting will be less successful in the warmer areas than in the cool-

Berries Do Well In North State

Take a bowl of fresh picked blackberries, add a generous helping of cream and sugar and you have what many a gardener insists is the ultimate enjoyment from his gardening effort. Or is your dish a bowl of raspberries? You can have either or both in practically every corner of California.

The blackberry varieties which most members of the California Assn. of Nurserymen recommend are Boysen, Logan, Young and Nectar. All are at their peak in the cooler coastal valleys of Northern California, but yield good crops in practically every region where they are planted—low desert areas excepted.

Raspberries are definitely better for cooler summer conditions than much of California affords but, here again, they are worth planting and usually succeed in home gardens where commercial growers would hesitate to plant them.

For easiest control, use a trellis. Provide sturdy end posts—at least 4"x4" in size—about 4½ feet above the ground. String a number 12 or 13 galvanized wire taut between the tops of these and another at about 2½ or 3 feet above the ground. Intermediate supports of 2"x2" redwood should be spaced at about 12 foot intervals.

Let canes grow the first year. In August, head cut each cane at about 8 feet and twine it around the wires of the trellis—loosely. In fall, cut lateral growth at about 15 inches. The following year, these canes will bear fruit and should be cut completely back after they do. New growth which has been left to sprawl should then be headed back and treated exactly as the new growth was the year before.

Culture for raspberries is the same, except canes are headed at 4 to 6 feet. The trellis is only 3½ feet high and constructed with cross arms at each end like a telephone pole. Cross arms are about 16 inches long—one at the top and another a foot and a half lower. Wire is strung down the ends of these and the canes are trained up between the wires.

All this takes a modicum of effort one or two times a year. But you'll forget about it in a hurry when you've sampled the results.

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST

- You'll find it this month with daphne or sweet olive. Both can and should be planted now.
- When planting fruit trees, make sure to check on the pollenizing needs of the variety you plant. Some need a nearby tree of another variety to be fruitful.
- Watch roses for signs that buds are beginning to swell. When they do, sharpen the pruning shears and go to work.
- Summer-flowering bulbs begin to make their appearance at nurseries this month. Watch for Tigridia and Watsonia. Cannas can wait another six weeks or so.

ARCHITECT'S CHOICE for exterior is white asphalt shingled roof to contrast with coloring of siding.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Budget-Built Home, Many Extras

What better way to start planning for a new home than to consider full play of the modern trend of indooroutdoor living?

And House of the Week Design HW-42 does just this.

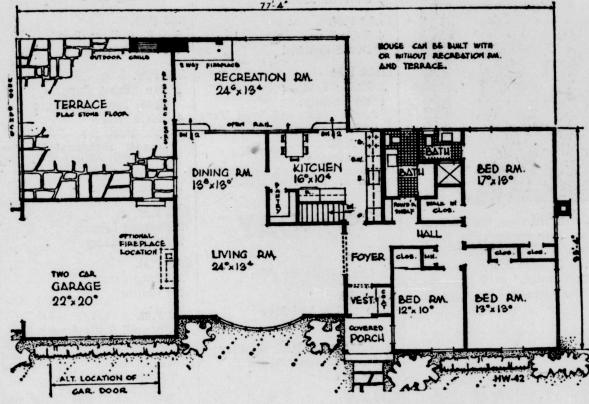

The spacious, sunken recreation or family room called for in this plan is located to give the utmost use and control. Architect Herman H. York has adroitly tied in this room with the entire living wing to produce an open plan expansiveness seldom found in a moderately-priced home.

There is an entrance to the recreation room from the dining-living room area and another from the kitchen. And the indoor-outdoor motif is enhanced by the use of sliding doors between the recreation room and the fenced-in flagstone terrace. Adding to this over-all picture of comfortable living in all seasons of the year is a two-way fireplace, cleverly designed so that the outdoor section of the unit forms a pleasing and efficient barbecue.

THERE IS a complete separation of the living and sleeping areas of this house. Undisturbed sleep is possible in one wing while the TV set is on or guests are being entertained in the other. This is made possible by the unusually wide foyer between the two sections, an architectural feature that serves to cut down the passage of sound.

The covered center entrance leads to a vestibule just in front of the foyer, an arrangement which serves as a shield from the wind while the front door is open. To the left is the living room, to the right three bedrooms and straight ahead a sizeable kitchen with a large pantry. The family can get a feeling of balconied luxury by eating in the kitchen and looking down at the sunken recreation room over a decorative open rail. Kitchen appliances are carefully grouped to save extra steps as much as poss-

Both this and the family bathroom are located in the same segment of the house as the kitchen, a design plan that keeps all the plumbing lines together. rage at the side of the house, there is a full frontage of 77 feet, 4 inches. But if the plot is too small to permit a side entrance drive, the garage door can be located in front, a contingency architect York has noted in the plans.

Title Insurance Rates Higher

Title insurance rates are higher than the rates tioned in a story in last week's Marin Magazine.

Marin title firm officials pointed out that under a rate revision last September, it costs $139 for $15,000 worth of coverage under a standard policy. This comes to $109 for the first $10,000 and about $6 for each additional thou-to contrast with the coloring of the shingles and brickwork. You can, of course, make your own changes in the choice of exterior materials. It would be a difficult matter indeed to detract from the basic cheerfulness of this

Do you know what you are missing by not having at least one TV set in your home?

We know for a fact that educational TV station KQED is responsible for one friend of ours buying her first TV set. This friend is an artist and became fascinated with the classes T. Mikami, Director of the Japanese Art Center of S.F., had on KQED, Tuesdays at 8 p.m. and repeated Wednesdays at 4:30 p.m. The subject is "Japanese Brush Painting." T. Mikami draws the subject and tells his proxy students and those watching-like me-exactly how to copy his lines and draw such subjects as: birds, pine trees, Mt. Fuji, flowers, and Japanese figures . . . By all means have at least one TV set in your home. Painting, science, westerns, news, movies . . . just think what you're missing without a TV set! Hoy's has TV sets at almost any price you want to pay at either store!

We wouldn't be without a tape recorder either! You can have sound with your movies on tape, exchange ideas with friends, and record music etc. off radio, FM and TV! HOY'S has wonderful BELL and WEB-COR tape recording machines. Some models even record STEREO sound! These are just 2 suggestions how to put some new fun in your life in 1959!

Rita Moreno also stars in the drama.

"THAR HE GOES" — Although he appears ready to go, Lowell Thomas did not make the journey with the Nike-Asp rocket which was launched last October by the U.S. IGY naval expedition to make the first above-the-atmosphere study of a solar eclipse. In exclusive television film coverage globe trotting Thomas takes KPIX viewers to the remote, exotic South Sea atoll of "Danger Island" for the historic inauguration of rocket astronomy and the meeting between the atomic West and the South Pacific of 200 years ago, on "High Adventure with Lowell Thomas," at 9 p.m. Monday.
